Republican seeking to unseat coroner

Challenger notes need to cooperate with law-enforcement groups

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

The race for Lake County coroner has Democratic incumbent Richard Keller running against Republican challenger Michael Oster.

Keller, 54, is seeking a second term in office. He cites his experience and a successful first term as reasons why voters should re-elect him.

"I've been able to get a lot done in terms of updating the office and bringing it into the 21st century," he said.

Keller has overseen updates to equipment used in the coroner's toxicology lab and in investigative services. These updates give staff the "tools they need to serve the county," he said.

Keller added that one of the initiatives he would like to continue - if he is re-elected - is the office's efforts at "forestalling death."

The highlights of these efforts include working to prevent suicide and underage drinking, he said.

Keller also addressed the need to ensure such messages got across to teenagers.

"Their brains are still developing, so you have to get the message to them differently than with adults," he said. "It takes repeated efforts of giving them the facts. It's a different focus [than with adults.]"

Oster, 57, said his 30 years of work at a trauma center and in an emergency room make him qualified to take the reigns from Keller.

"By working with death and trauma in the emergency room I have a good understanding of what causes death," Oster said.

He said that an endorsement from former Lake County coroner Barbara Richardson further proves that he is capable of handling the position.

Oster said the most important role of the coroner's office is law enforcement and working with law-enforcement agencies to investigate deaths.

"In my administration there would be no concerns of a lack of cooperation between the coroner's office and law enforcement," Oster said.

He said each case the coroner's office investigates must be viewed on an individual basis. By doing that, officials would avoid falling into traps that would lead to the wrong conclusion.

"You have to look at every case from start to finish," Oster said. "You can't have blanket policies."

Both candidates noted the need for the coroner's office to work with families who are grieving with the loss of a loved one.

"We don't quickly deal with families," Keller said. "It's more of a long-term relationship to work through the processes and their grieving."

Oster said he would provide services to family members of the deceased.

"I plan to restore compassion for the living and respect for the dead," he said.

The coroner's office is mandated by the state to investigate the manner and cause of deaths occurring within Lake County.

The coroner's jurisdiction is determined by where a death occurs, not where a particular incident happened that might have caused the death.

Organizers plan fund-raising event for local family with ill father

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

SPRING GROVE — Mary Ann Coon knows that maintaining a positive attitude in the face of a bad situation cannot, by itself, return her family's life to normalcy. But she also knows it is better than only dwelling on the bad.

"No one ever believes it's going to happen to them," Coon said. "I try to teach my kids there has to be a silver lining to every dark cloud."

Coon was rocked early this summer when her husband, Bruce, was diagnosed with frontotemporal dementia.

The rare disease causes severe behavioral changes in patients, and Coon said it forced her husband to stop work.

Now he rarely engages in conversations and often gives just one-word responses, Coon said.

But even though the diagnosis was not good news, Coon said, it came as a "huge relief." She said she originally chalked up the strange behavior to a mid-life crisis or stress from owning a business.

The family had taken Bruce Coon to several doctors without any firm answers, so the diagnosis let the family know what they were up against, Coon said.

Both Bruce Coon and his wife have lived in Spring Grove since they were chil-

With Bruce Coon unable to work, friends and other

Brian Schmidt, Bruce Coon's brother-in-law, said those planning the fundraiser have solicited donations for a silent auction, adding that raffles and prize giveaways also were on the agenda.

Food and a cash bar will be available as well, he said.

Although the purpose of the event is to raise money to help pay for family expenses and possible long-term care for Bruce Coon, Schmidt said, organizers also hope to raise awareness about his condition.

"I had never heard of it before [the diagnosis]," Schmidt said.

Coon said the response from the community has been a big help to her and her family.

"It was great for me to see people put their own needs aside when they see someone in their own dire need," she said. "You're never going to find the words to express to people the importance they have had on your life."

Coon said the most difficult part of the situation is helping her children cope with their father's illness. But the support she and her family have received makes her grateful that she lives in a close-knit community, she said.

"There's no better people when you're down and out," Coon said.

Fall festival to feature Halloween happenings

By MARK HANSEN
antioch@weeklyjournals.com

ANTIOCH — At the end of the harvest, great creatures of the night roam neighborhoods and streets in search of one common, irresistible urge — candy.

Now is the time to embrace fall, before winter settles in. And area residents can do that at the Antioch Fall Fest, which will take place from noon to 11 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 11.

The all day event will feature food, games, spooky adventures, and live music.

The fest will have those famed and loved activities of previous years, while adding new events.

Antioch Parks and Recreation Director Laurie Stahl noted a format change from the previous years.

"We started doing October-fest three years ago and the Halloween Howl about 10; and the two events were separated by one week," Stahl said.

"We consolidated the effort and put it all into one event [this year], incorporating the best from both events," she said.

Included on the day's agenda are a number of registration-required events.

Area residents can pre-register for the events by logging on to the village Web site at www.antioch.il.gov and completing the registration forms.

Events will include an "Adventure Race," based on TV's Amazing Race, at 10 a.m. on Oct. 11. During that event, teams will be tested physically and mentally in various activities taking place around Antioch.

Following the race, the fifth annual "Running of the Weiner Dachshund Races" will ensue. This event pits dachshunds against each other in a foot race to the finish.

Immediately following that event will be the great "Pumpkin Roll." Sign up for the event is limited to the first 50 participants.

The final event of the day will be a bean-bag tournament.

For the younger folk, there will be a moonwalk, kids coloring contest, haystack hunt, haunted walkway through the wetlands, spooky stories and more games.

A new event will be an Antioch Community High School vs. Lakes Community High School tug-of-war contest.

This event will provide the winners with bragging rites, in addition to a traveling trophy.

Music will be played throughout the day, first by the G-Town DJ's from noon to 4 p.m. Then Twist of Fate, Mojo Hand and Awful Truth will play.

Food and beverages at the event will include pizza, popcorn, hot dogs, brats, hamburgers, roasted pig, beer, wine and soda.

Stahl said young and old alike are encouraged to dress in costume.

"There's going to be some great family fun in our downtown area," Stahl said.

"I hope people are open minded to the new format. I think they'll be surprised, and enjoy it," she said.

Community to host fundraiser for neighbors in need; money will help with funeral costs

By COLIN SELBO

LAKE VILLA – When a family loses one of its own, it's impossible to fill the void that is left. But the Carmichael family is doing the best it can.

When Sue Carmichael passed away in July shortly after giving birth to her third child, she left behind a family this is determined to keep moving forward.

"It's been tough raising the kids and the baby by myself. But I'm doing it; I have no choice," said Robert Carmichael, Sue Carmichael's husband. "I never thought I would be raising my kids by myself."

Robert Carmichael and his children – Robyn, 17; Alexandra, 10; and Daniel, 3 months – moved to Lake Villa from McHenry after their mother passed away to be closer to family.

The kids play volleyball with their cousins, Carmichael said, and his family helps care for Daniel when he is at work.

Carmichael said that he and the "Everybody steps up. [We] can't rely on mommy for everything anymore," he said.

Robert Carmichael's family and friends are also stepping up for the family. They are planning a fundraiser on Saturday, Oct. 11, to help support the family and pay for funeral expenses.

Robert Carmichael's mother, Sherl Harrington, said the event will include a pig roast and about 300 items to auction off.

Among the auction items are travel vouchers and donations from the Chicago Cubs and Chicago Bears, she said.

In addition to the auction and prizes, crafts and games will be available for children. And three bands also will be on hand, Harrington said.

Harrington said the response to the fundraiser has been, "unbelievable." She said she is grateful for those who want to help the Carmichael family.

Robert Carmichael said this is not the first time the family has been hit by tragedy as his wife's father passed away when she was 8.

Now that he and his children are on their own, he is thankful for the support the family is receiving.

"I never thought people would be coming together this much for me and the kids," he said. "I don't

Fire strikes downtown eatery

No injuries reported in Antioch blaze; cause not immediately known

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsjournal.com

ANTIOCH — A morning fire caused heavy damage to a downtown Antioch restaurant on Oct. 6, but no injuries were reported in the blaze.

The fire at Anastasias Restaurant and Sports Lounge, located at 438 Lake St., began about 11:08 a.m. and was under control by 12:15 p.m., said Chris Lienhardt, public information officer for the Antioch Fire Department.

Lienhardt said the fire originated in the kitchen of the restaurant.

The cause of the blaze was still under investigation as of Oct. 6, he said.

"At this point it appears the fire was not incendiary in nature; however, we are waiting for the insurance company to complete their investigations," Lienhardt said.

He estimated that damages to the structure totaled at least $250,000.

Lienhardt said firefighters received a call about the fire after speaking at nearby Hillcrest Elementary School in Antioch. He said extra firefighters were on duty at the time because of the talk. That allowed the department to have additional firefighters on the scene sooner than would usually be the case.

"We were fortunate that we had two pieces of equipment and did what we could to control the fire," Lienhardt said. "We got there right at the point when [the fire] really started to take off."

Firefighters were forced to break front and side windows on the restaurant as the blaze intensified so as to relieve heat and smoke within the building, Lienhardt said.

As many as 15 fire departments from Lake, McHenry and Kenosha counties responded to the fire, Lienhardt said.

He said all businesses in the attached strip mall were evacuated as a precaution and that Lake Street was closed off until approximately 2:30 p.m.

A call for leadership change

To the Editor:

Again weather and international politics are driving oil and gas prices up to economically nonviable levels. Hurricanes Gustav and Ike have plowed into Texas and Louisiana, disrupting production.

Russia, having been confronted by the West for invading Georgia, has made a threat to cut off oil exports to Eastern Europe; while Venezuela's Hugo Chavez has just recently threatened to stop selling oil to the U.S.

The position America is now in is untenable and dangerous. We need to be energy self-dependent, and that means developing all sources of energy. Expanding oil and natural gas exploration will create American union jobs and prosperity for American families. Americans should buy their energy from fellow Americans — energy that has been brought to market by American workers.

Knowing all this, the doing nothing Democrat-controlled Congress goes on vacation, without addressing opening new areas for exploration only to have Congress reconvene this past week to pass a sham energy bill, which still puts 90 percent of energy sources off limits. All the while, the rest of the world is busily drilling for oil and gas, with some using it as a weapon against Western democracies.

We need leadership change in Congress. Our own District 8 representative, Melissa Bean, helped make Nancy Pelosi the speaker of the House. Bean will march lock-step with Democrat leaders.

Eighth District candidate Steve Greenberg believes in a comprehensive energy plan using proven sources such as oil, gas, and nuclear coupled with conservation in order to buy time for the development of next-generation energy supplies. Such a plan will encourage investment in America and strengthen the economy. Energy self-dependence for America and for the Eighth District starts with electing Steve Greenberg to Congress.

Thanking officials

To the Editor:

I want to thank Sens. Barack Obama and Dick Durbin as well as Rep. Melissa Bean for acting as our voices in Washington against the proposed purchase of the EJ&E Railroad.

Canadian National Railway, which plans to buy the rail, received the lowest grade level possible on implementing safety-management systems in a report from the Canadian Parliament.

Proponents would have our communities left vulnerable by a company proven to be unsafe. Thankfully, we have leaders such as Obama, Durbin and Bean who understand the needs of our community and share our values.

Examining the current financial meltdown

To the Editor:

As I reflect on the financial crisis that many say is threatening the collapse of this nation's economy, the $700 billion bailout requested by the Bush Administration of Congress is still in flux.

Just how did this nation arrive at a financial meltdown of such Draconian proportions? Democrats, given the bully pulpit by the media, have convinced many Americans that the crisis is the fault of Republicans and their cowboy approach to capitalism.

How wrong Democrats are! Let me set the record straight. According to a report in The Investor's Business Daily on Sept. 15, the seed was planted in the '90s by Clinton and his social engineers. At this time, tough new regulations were put in place to force lenders into high-risk areas where they had to lower lending standards.

Now, fast forward to 2003 when on 9/11 the New York Times reported: "The Bush Administration today recommended the most significant regulatory overhaul in the housing finance industry since the savings and loan crisis a decade ago."

At the time Barney Frank, then the ranking Democrat on the Financial Services Committee, declared Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac were not facing any financial crisis.

Similarly in 2005, John McCain and three other senators proposed a strong reform bill to rein in Fannie and Freddie.

It also died when Democrats, among them Chuck Schumer, threatened a filibuster despite a warning from Alan Greenspan that something must be done to ward off disaster.

Democrats opposed reform, in part, because they feared it would mean fewer loans to poor people. Fannie and Freddie cooked their books so senior executives would be paid millions of dollars in bonuses to which they were not entitled. Three of these senior executive, Franklin Raines, James Johnson, and Jamie Gorelick, have ties to Obama.

Fannie Mae CEO Franklin Raines was forced to resign in December 2004 because of "accounting irregularities." Seldom reported is that Obama received $109,000 in contributions from Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac in just a few years as a senator.

As disturbing at the $700 billion bailout may sound, it could get worse if Democrats are successful in exploiting the crisis for political leverage. Obama would like to see an economic stimulus package for families struggling to pay bills and stave off foreclosure. Doesn't Obama know that a Housing and Recovery Act passed in late July does help the little guy to the tune of $300 billion dollars? What's next?

Are the American people foolish enough to give up their liberty and prosperity to a government controlled by a political party that set the wrong policies in the first place to foster the financial melt debacle and whose policies call for more government control? This sounds like socialism to me.

Will the American people elect candidates who believe people are free to make choices and even fail, or will a majority opt for a nanny state where government decides what is best after a redistribution of wealth to fund its welfare state? Barack Obama represents the latter. Is this the change Americans really desire?

Economy reigns supreme as 2008 election issue

When then President George H.W. Bush ran for re-election against Bill Clinton, he was the favorite, riding the crest of the first Gulf War. But a looming recession and high unemployment closed the gap in the final months of the campaign.

It was then that James Carville, Clinton's strategist, came up with: "It's the economy, stupid."

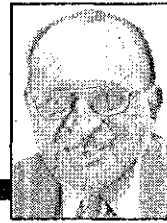

The rest is history.

In a recent poll, voters indicated by a whopping 65 percent that the economy was the No. 1 issue in the November election. The health-care crisis and education even surpassed national security.

When Sen. John McCain said the "fundamentals of the economy were strong," it was unbelievable.

Shortly after his recent remark, he tried to erase his comment by saying that he meant the American workers are productive and resilient.

A day later, McCain admitted that the economy is in crisis, and characterized greed on Wall Street and in Washington as the culprits.

John S. Matijevich

The outsourcing of jobs has had a disastrous impact on employment figures. And don't tell us that those are all jobs that we don't want. The unemployment rate is the highest in seven years, and still climbing.

The sub-prime loan scandal has led to the most foreclosures ever. The crisis can be directly attributed to the lack of regulating mortgage lenders.

The energy crisis pinches harder each time we go to the gas pump or heat our homes.

I remember when President George W. Bush was debating during the Republican 2000 primary election when he said what we need is a president who will "jawbone" the OPEC countries to "open up the spigot" to increase the oil supply.

For eight years, Bush did no "jaw-boning" of oil companies, unless it was to contribute to his political war chest.

It is a sad commentary of our times that when the regulatory process stuck its collective heads in the sand for so many years, we will now call on taxpayers to finance the largest bailout in American history.

I realize that some bailout is necessary because we otherwise would face more than a recession. We would face a horrendous depression.

But, we are all mad on how this came about. I don't want anyone to tell me again that "government should keep its nose out of businesses."

We got to where we are today because corporations were given a free hand without adequate regulations, and look what happened.

Views on Dental HealthDr. Brian Gnadek & Associates in the Linden Plaza in LindenhurstSigns of Oral Cancer

Cancer can affect any of the tissues in your mouth. Smokers (including cigar and pipe smokers), tobacco chewers, and heavy drinkers should be particularly alert to the warning signs. Consult your doctor or dentist if you notice any of the following.

- A sore on your lips, gums, or mouth lining that does not heal within 2 to 3 weeks.
- Any white patch inside your mouth or on your lips.
- Any swelling or lump inside your mouth or on your lips or tongue, even though it is not painful or spreading.
- Unexplained numbness or pain in your mouth or throat.
- Repeated bleeding in your mouth with no apparent cause.

None of the items mentioned above mean that there is cancer present. In fact, the high probability is that any condition mentioned is transient or has a perfectly non-threatening explanation. It would be wise, however, to err on the side of caution and have it checked.

Angels are all around

"I believe there are angels among us, sent down to us from somewhere up above. They come to you and me in our darkest hours. To show us how to live, to teach us how to give."

-Alabama

I have this 85-year-old neighbor who slowly walks across the street several times a week with her hands full.

She gives me meals she tells me her family wouldn't eat. She gives me boxes of crackers, cookies, curtains, movies and clothes she says her grandkids have outgrown.

"I don't want to eat too many of these," she'll say as she hands over an unopened box of crackers.

She once made waffles covered with powdered sugar that my kids went nuts over. She told me she simply had made too many, but I have a feeling she had my kids in mind as she cooked.

We'll talk about her health, the weather, that sort of thing, nothing too serious, nothing too deep. She, too, raised five children.

I don't know her very well, but I learn a little more about her every time I see her. She reminds me in some ways of my late grandmother, Noo Noo.

My youngest twin girls, the unexpected babies doctors told me I'd never conceive naturally, were born two days before the one-year anniversary of Noo Noo's death. I like to think that Noo Noo's part of the reason they're here.

She wouldn't have wanted us to dwell on her death a year later. So, she put two new babies in my arms to make me smile and freak me out. She always liked to stir up a little trouble.

I like to think that when my neighbor is hugging or holding my children, in a way, so is Noo Noo. Because I know how much Noo Noo would have wanted to, and it kills me to think that my children will never get to sit on Noo Noo's lap or fall asleep in her arms.

And when my neighbor watches from her window as my girls play outside, I like to think that Noo Noo's also watching. They're both making sure the girls don't wander too close to the road or talk to strangers.

Some days, most days, when my neighbor visits, I'm frazzled, having rushed from one screaming baby to another.

Some days, I feel like I'm falling apart. And I'm sure that's exactly what I look like.

If she notices, she doesn't say. She has this sort of calming affect on me and my children. They tell her stories, ask for hugs. She laughs, reminisces about the days when her children were younger.

"Your girls are so beautiful," she'll say.

And then she slowly walks home.

'One World, One Sky'

Planetarium show to feature friends from Sesame Street

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

CHICAGO - Big Bird is hitting the big, starry screen at the Adler Planetarium in Chicago.

The planetarium and Liberty Science Center in Jersey City, N.J., have collaborated on the China-U.S. project, which is intended for children ages 4 through 6.

The planetarium show "One World, One Sky: Big Bird's Adventure" will follow the Sesame Street characters Big Bird, Elmo and Hu Hu Zhu on an exploration of the sky.

It will make its U.S. premiere at the Adler Planetarium on Wednesday, Oct. 15. The show will then continue to play daily at the planetarium.

The project received major funding from the National Science Foundation with additional support from the WLS Spencer Foundation, China Association for Science and Technology, and the National Natural Science Foundation of China.

"One World, One Sky: Big Bird's Adventure" begins on Sesame Street when Elmo's friend Hu Hu Zhu visits from China.

Viewers will see Big Bird, Elmo and Hu Hu Zhu then undertake an exciting discovery of the Sun, Moon, and stars. They learn about the Big Dipper and the North Star and take an imaginary trip to the Moon, where they learn

All the details

What: "One World, One Sky: Big Bird's Adventure"

Where: Adler Planetarium, 1300 S. Lake Shore Drive, in Chicago

When: 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily, starting Oct. 15

Cost: Admission is $19 for adults; $17 for seniors; $15 for children older than 3; children younger than 3 are free. Cost includes general admission to the planetarium, plus show.

More information: www.adlerplanetarium.org that the Moon is a very different place from the Earth.

When Elmo and Hu Hu Zhu imagine themselves back on Earth, they celebrate the idea that - even though they live in two different countries - they still share the same sky.

The 20-minute planetarium show will appear in English and Spanish in the U.S. and in Mandarin in China.

The project's goals are to provide young children in China and the U.S. with an age-appropriate introduction to astronomy and to promote positive attitudes toward science among children in each country.

"Sesame Street brings children images of the world beyond their own and now 'One World, One Sky: Big Bird's Adventure' will take that one step further, bridging kids across nations through a common bond in learning about the sky together," said Gary E. Knell, president and CEO of Sesame Workshop, in a release. "This groundbreaking project will bring a unique opportunity for children and families to experience the fun of astronomy with the help of their friends from our Sesame family in the U.S. and China."

Sesame Workshop - in collaboration with Beijing Planetarium, Adler Planetarium and Liberty Science Center - will create outreach materials to build upon the key messages of "One World, One Sky" and encourage children, parents, caregivers, and educators to look up and explore the wonders of the sky.

The outreach resources will include a parent/child brochure filled with parent tips, activities and an interactive poster, to give families ideas for turning everyday moments into fun opportunities to explore the Sun, Moon, and stars.

It also will include teacher materials to help teachers extend the learning in "One World One Sky" and offer activity suggestions that integrate astronomy into pre-existing classroom routines and curriculum.

PUT OUT THE WELCOME MAT

Pink Ribbon rugs support breast cancer research

Since 2004, the nationwide chain of Carpet One Floor & Home has raised nearly $700,000 to support breast cancer research and awareness through the sale of the Welcome Your Support rugs. 25% of the cost of the $21.99 mats is donated to the Breast Cancer Research Foundation in support of research and awareness programs. Floor Decor Carpet One at 1870 E. Grand Avenue in Lindenhurst has sold the pink ribbon welcome mats for the past few years and has only 7 rugs left! So many people have said that having one means so much to them because either they are a survivor or they have a sister or friend who is. The welcome mat, with a pink ribbon on each one, is a great conversation starter and creates a wonderful way to promote awareness. In honor of National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Floor Decor Carpet One would love for you to take advantage of brightening your or someone else's doorstep and raise a little money for such a valuable cause. With every rug purchase, you will receive a gift bag with products that will also create awareness and we know you'll enjoy! We believe that together we can make a difference!

Escape to a nearby Forest Preserve for relaxation and recreation this fall.

Nippersink Forest Preserve near Round Lake and Heron Creek Forest Preserve near Long Grove are now open. Check www.LCFPD.org for information about these two new preserves and to find other trails and events near you.

A Forest Preserve Referendum, is on the November 4 Ballot.

If approved, it would replace older bonds that are being paid off in the coming year with $185 million in future bonds. Your tax rate would stay the same.

The referendum will not increase your taxes, but it will help to increase open space, restore wildlife habitat, create new trails and improve preserves throughout Lake County. Without approval, purchase of Forest Preserve lands would stop.

Find out more at www.LCFPD.org/Referendum.
